HAVE FUN SAFELY

DON'T GET HURT

NEVER dive until you've checked with a long pole for depth, hidden rocks or logs.
NEVER swim when tired, overheated or chilled.
NEVER swim where there's a fast current or undertow.
NEVER duck or rough-house anyone in the water.
NEVER swim after eating a big meal.

BE SMART-PLAY SAFE

ALWAYS stay reasonably close to the shore.
ALWAYS swim where there's a lifeguard, if possible.
ALWAYS swim with a "buddy."
ALWAYS "ease in" when the water is cold, instead of jumping or diving in.
ALWAYS dry off with a towel when you come out of the water.

HERE'S ANOTHER SMART IDEA...

Juicy Fruit Gum has lots of delicious flavor—and it won't spoil your appetite.

Ask your Mom to bring some home.

THE SMITTEN KITTEN

IF THEY'D QUIT CHASING ME AND GET TO KNOW ME, THEY MIGHT LIKE ME!

HMM... WHAT IF I JUST LET 'EM CATCH ME?

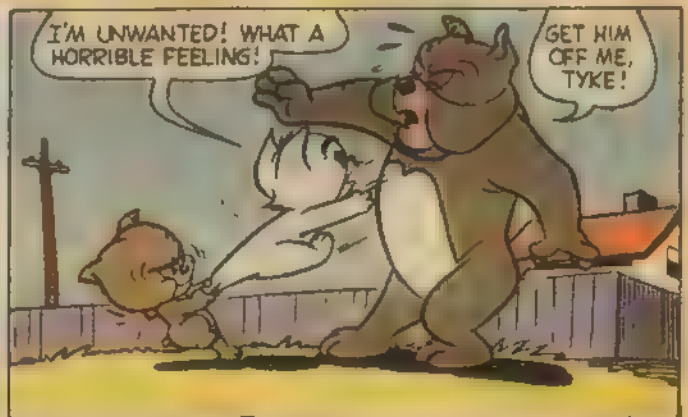

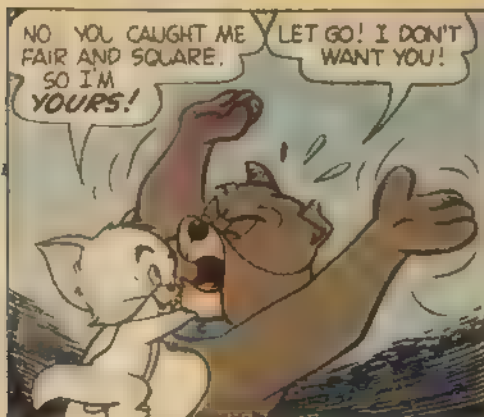

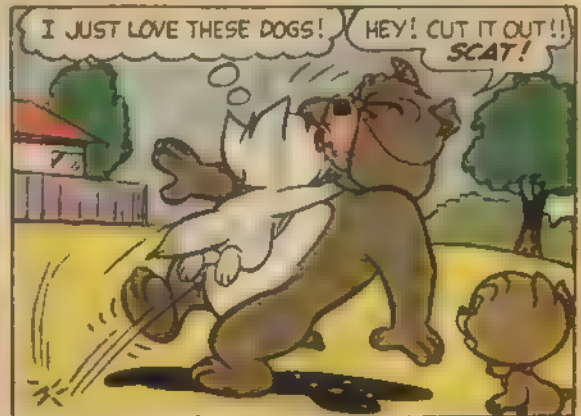

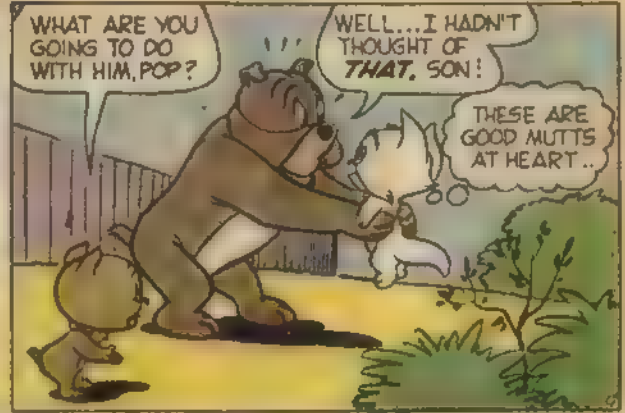

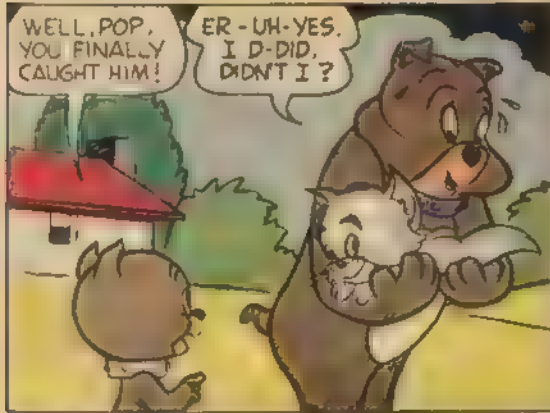

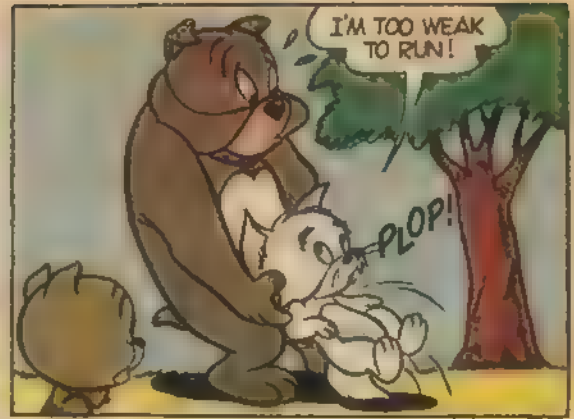

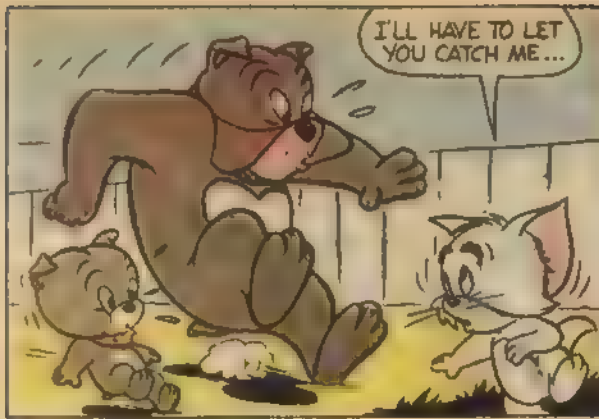

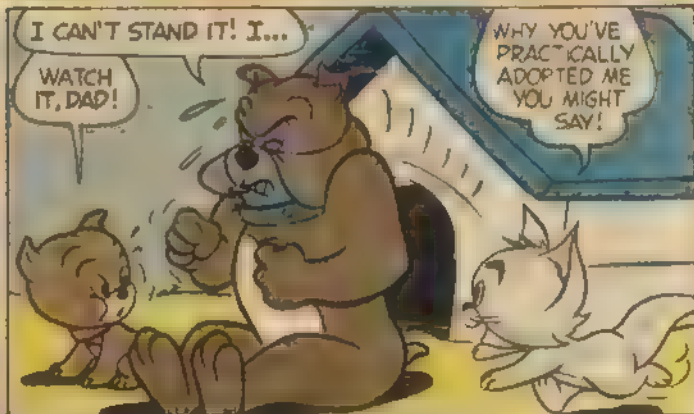

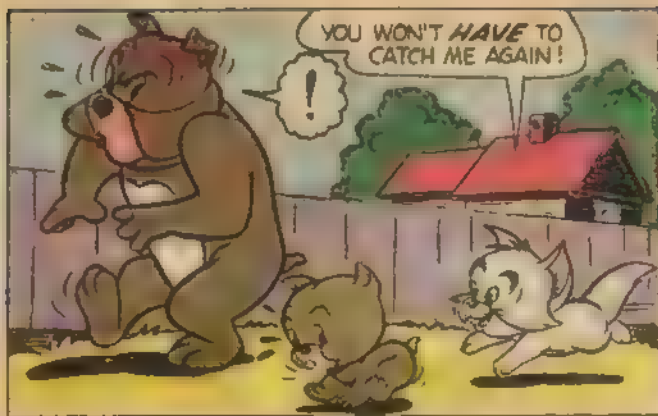

THAT CAT AGAIN!

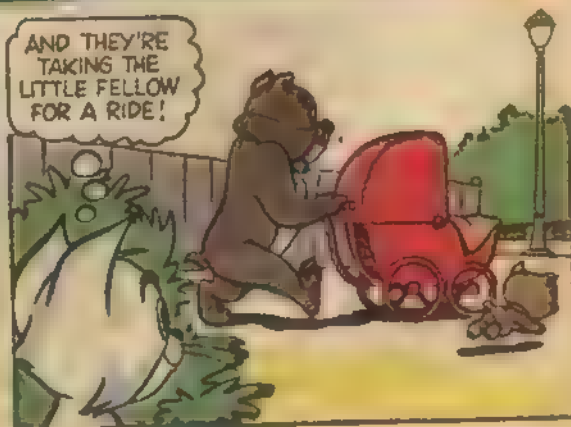

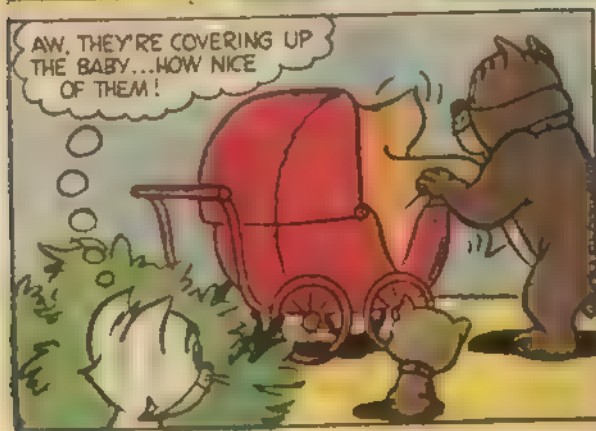

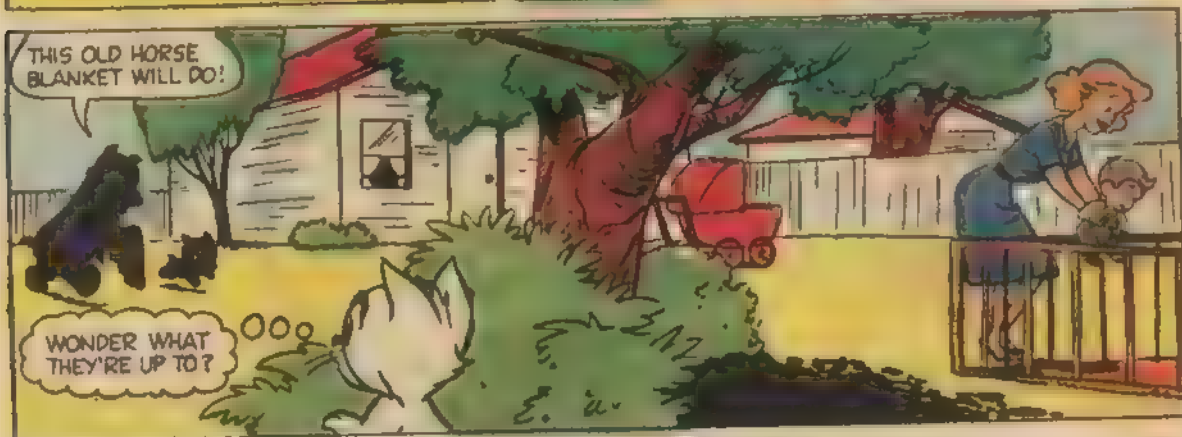

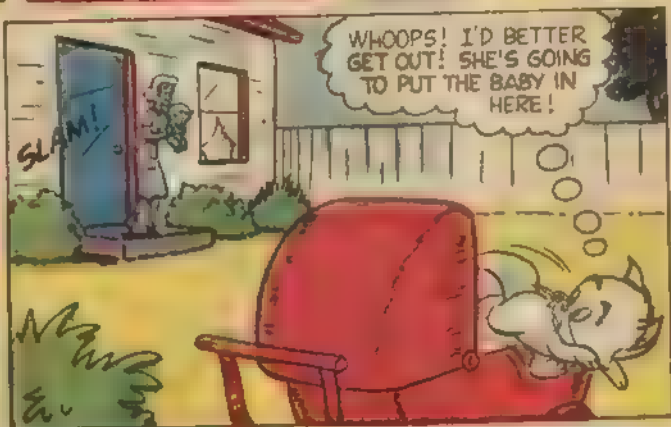

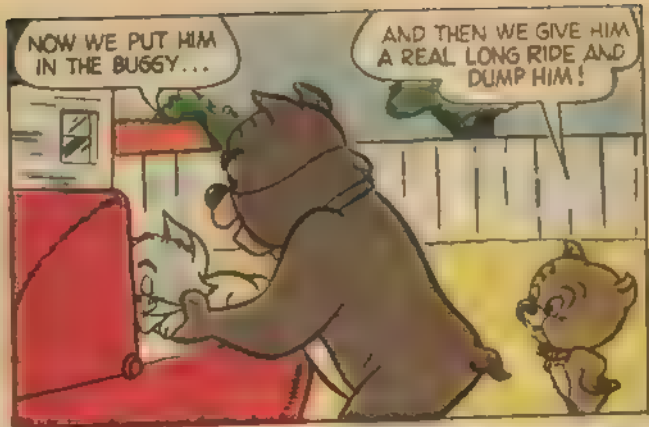

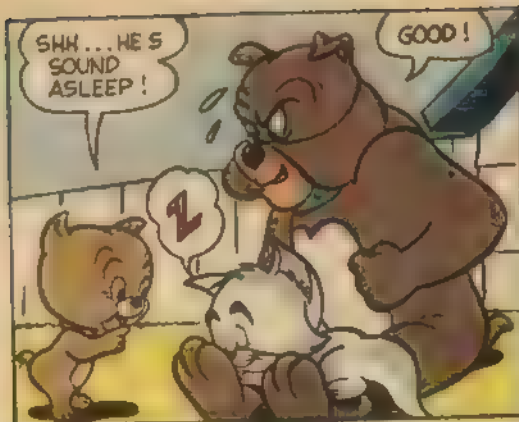

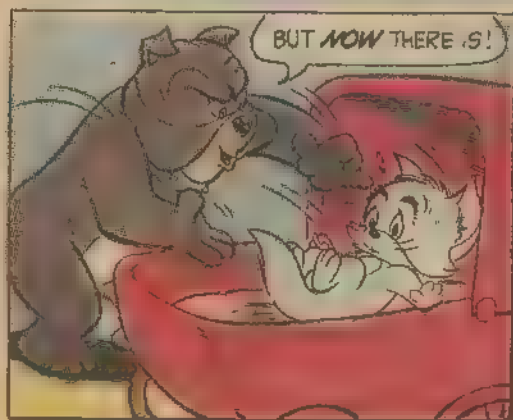

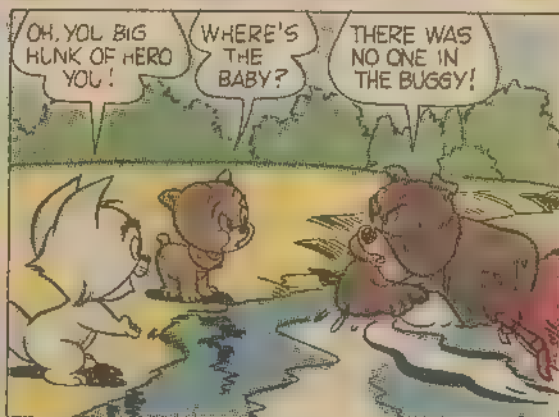

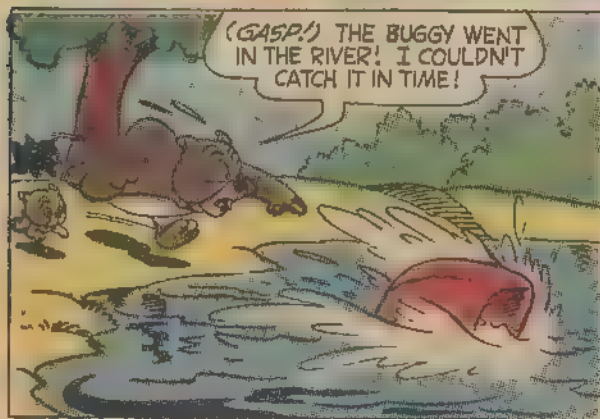

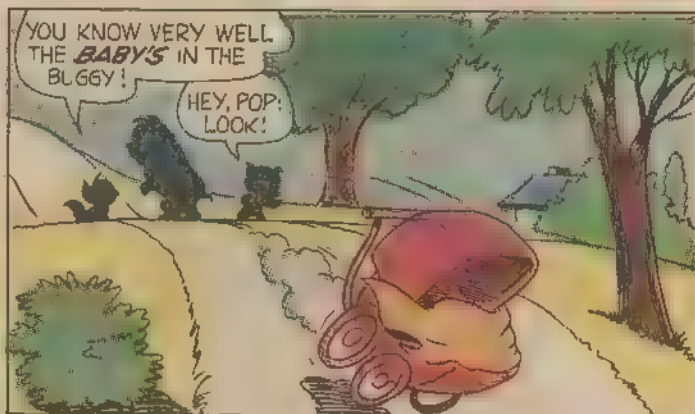

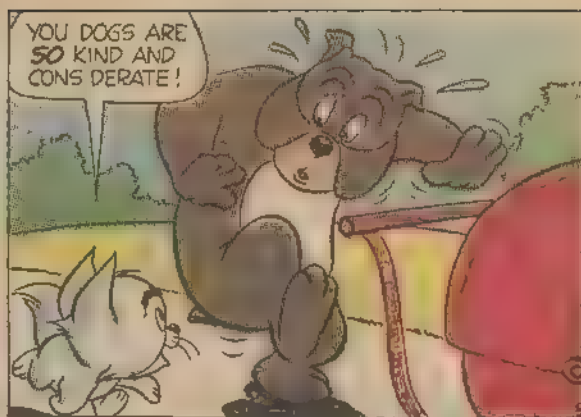

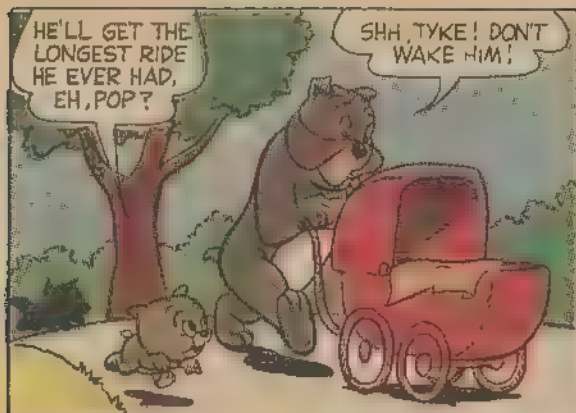

I'LL TRY IT! IT'S THE ONLY WAY TO GET ACQUAINTED WITH THEM!

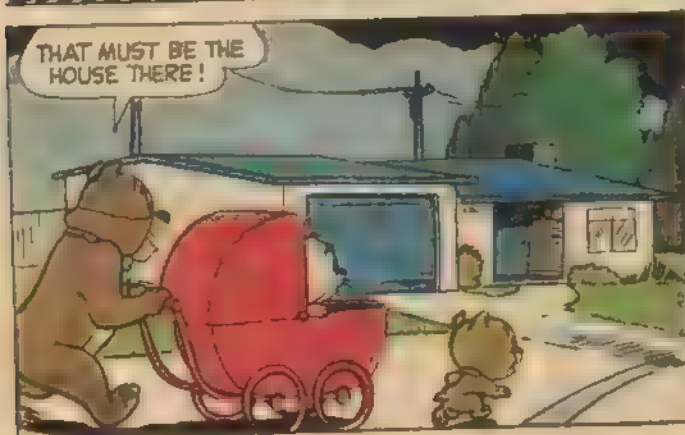

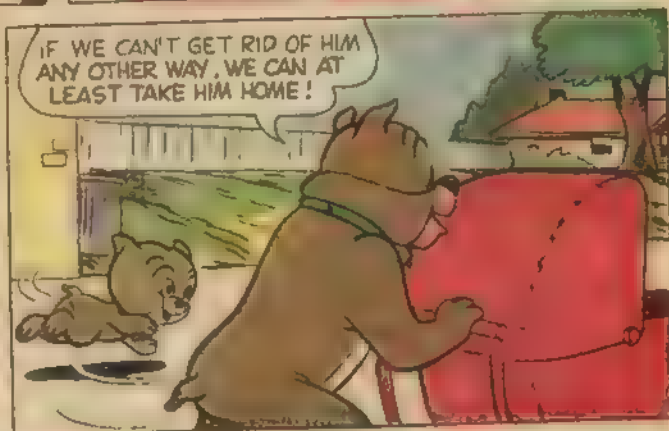

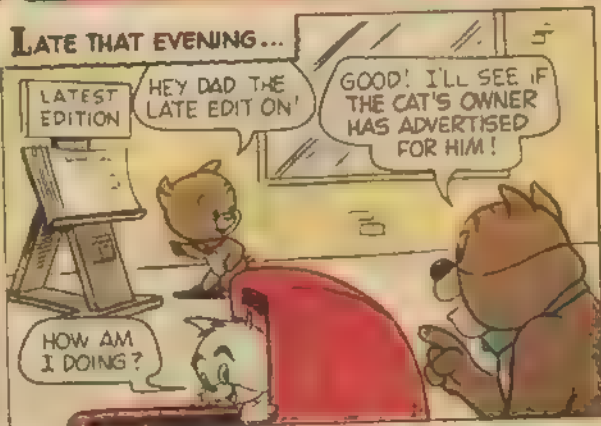

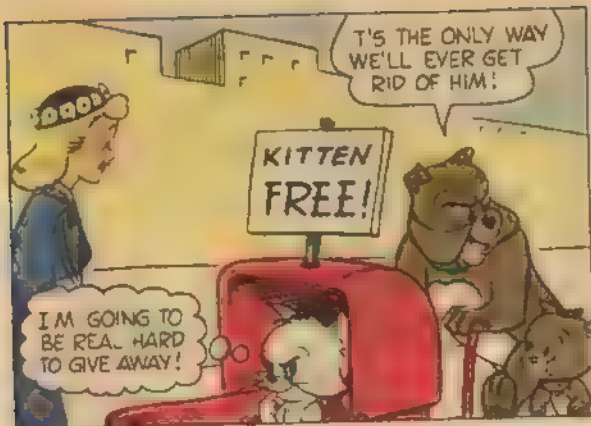

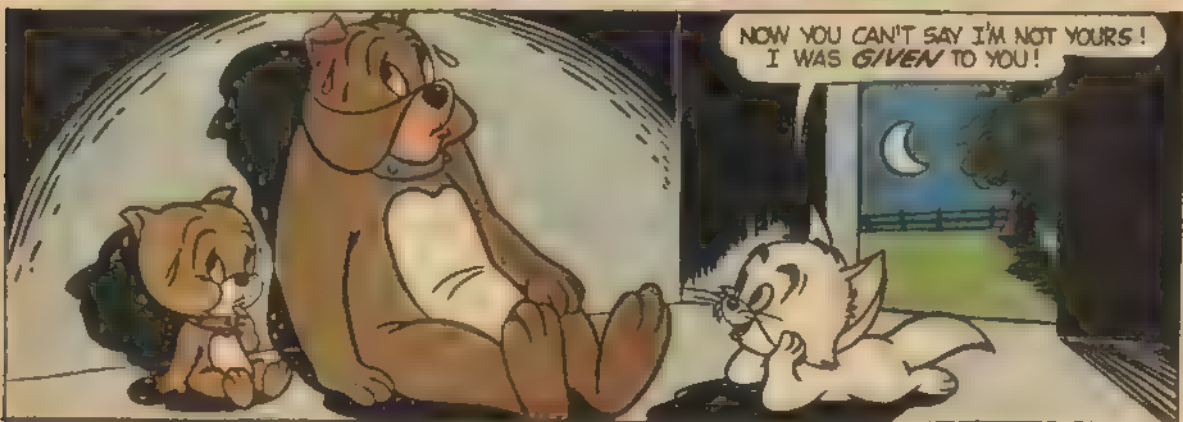

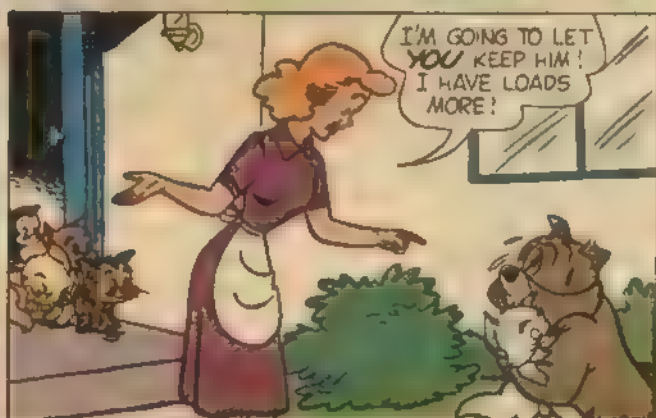

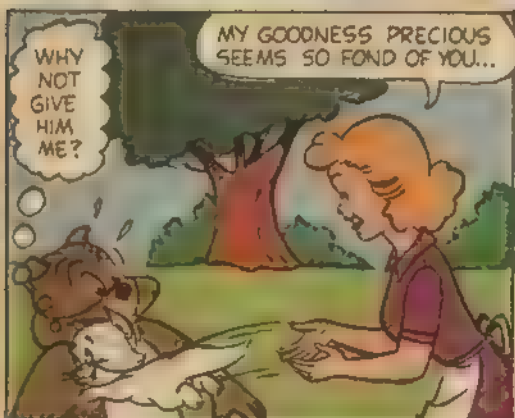

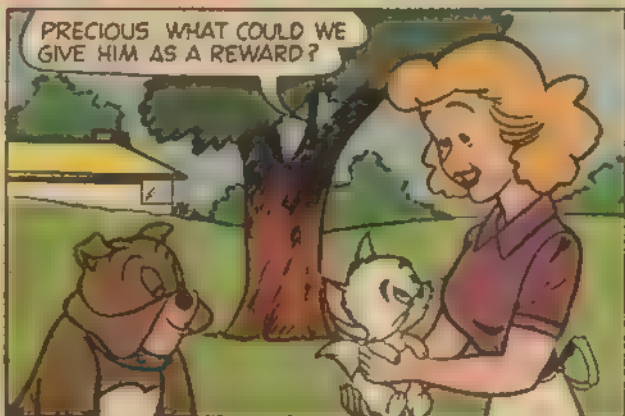

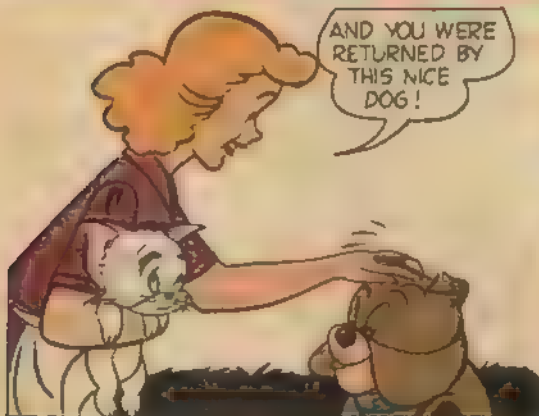

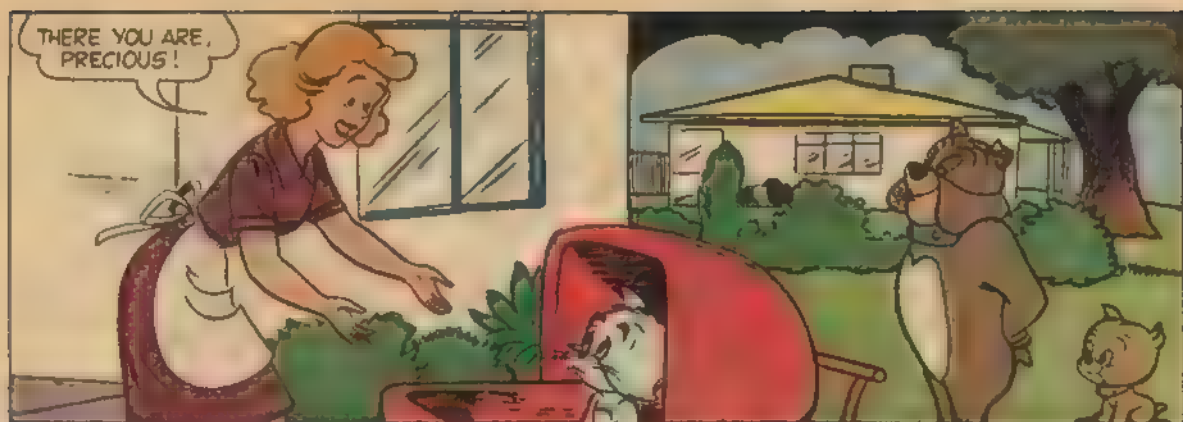

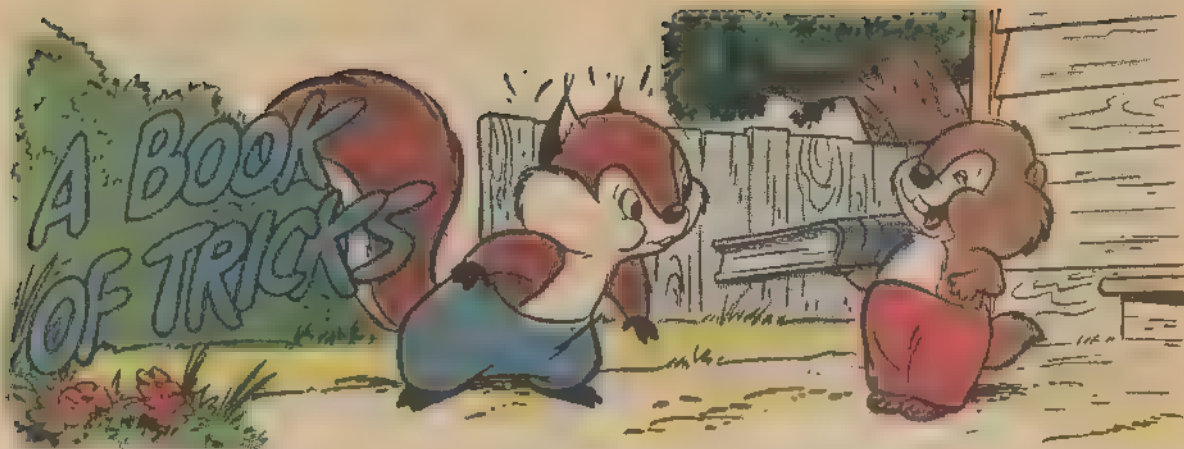

It was almost time for school to start when Sammy Squirrel raced up to Wuff's home. Before he had time to go inside, he heard a deep, gruff voice, which sounded very angry, and he skidded to a quick stop. A moment later, Wuff came outside, carrying a book and laughing with hearty amusement at his pal's bewilderment.

"Relax, Sammy," Wuff chuckled, holding out the article in his hand. "There's nobody else here. That voice came from this box that's made to look like a book, with a gadget inside that talks when the lid is lifted. I thought I'd take it to school and have some fun with it," he concluded.

"Whew," puffed Sammy, "if it scares them as much as it did me, it'll empty the schoolhouse in no time."

"Well, we'd better be on our way," Wuff reminded Sammy, "or we'll never get there to find out what really might happen."

"Let's take the short cut, so we won't be late," suggested Sammy.

"Fine," agreed Wuff, "but keep your eyes open for Charlie Coyote's traps. He almost caught me on that short cut once."

So the two friends started off toward school, chattering a mile a minute about the fun they would have with the talking box. When they came near to the place where Wuff knew a trap had been laid, they slowed down.

"Watch where you step," Wuff said, cautiously. "We're getting close."

"I don't like the looks of that spot up ahead," Sammy whispered. "See how those bushes are crushed and torn up?"

"That's a new trap!" Wuff said with surprise. "But look — there's another path past that big rock. We can go around Charlie's trap."

After a minute of tiptoeing down the path, Wuff jerked them to another halt.

"Look at that hole dug in the side of the ravine," he told Sammy. "It looks very suspicious to me."

"We can still outsmart Charlie, though," said Sammy, pointing to one side of the ravine. "There's a road going around it."

However, as they slid furtively along the path beside the narrow ravine, they ran head-on into a huge rock.

"Oh-oh," muttered Wuff, warily. "We can't get around this, and we can't go up the sides of this steep ravine. It looks as though we're really stuck this time."

"Well, well," a snarling voice rasped, "you are so right!"

Wuff and Sammy whirled around to see Charlie Coyote standing behind them, his white teeth glaring in an unfriendly smirk.

"I guess you've won, Charlie," sighed Wuff, despairingly, while Sammy drooped in dismay. Then, with a knowing wink to Sammy, he added, "You might as well have this very special book. It'll teach you some new tricks."

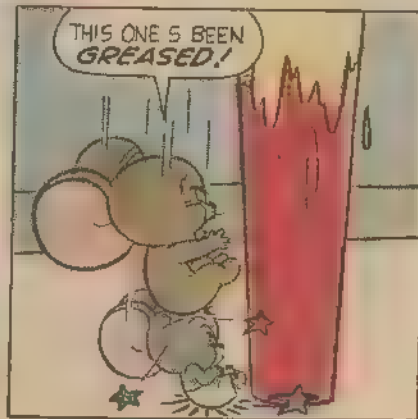

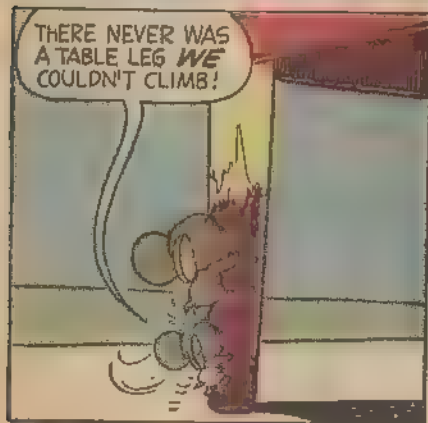

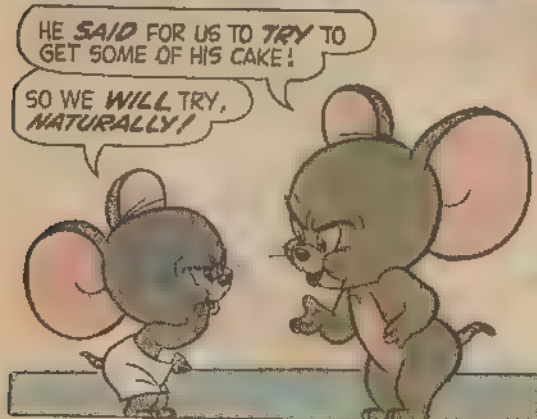

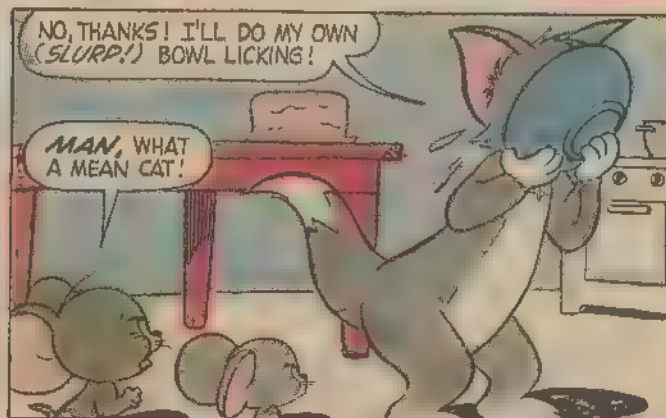

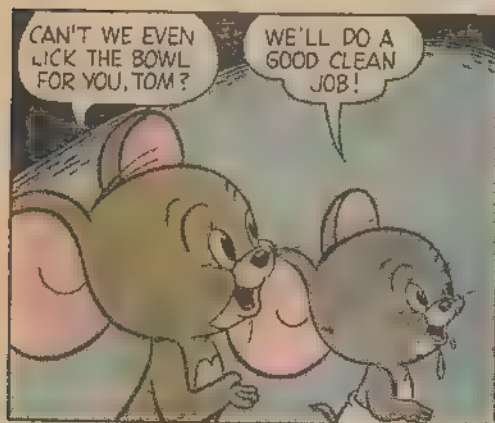

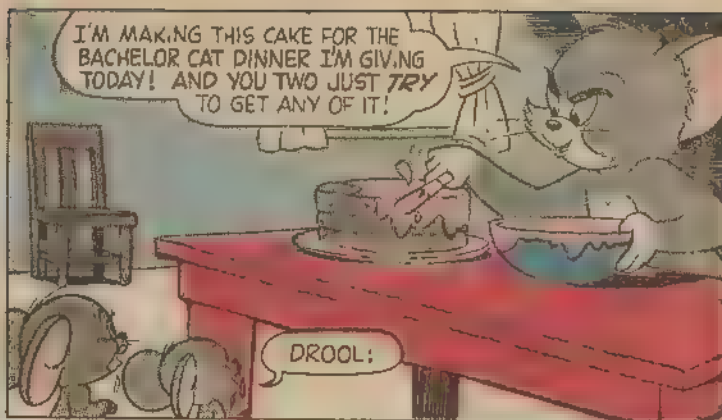

When Charlie's long fingers opened the fake book greedily, an unexpected voice suddenly commanded, "Halt! We have you surrounded, you villain! Surrender or we'll shoot!"

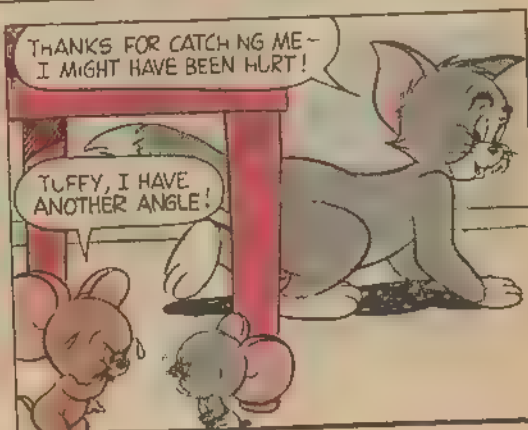

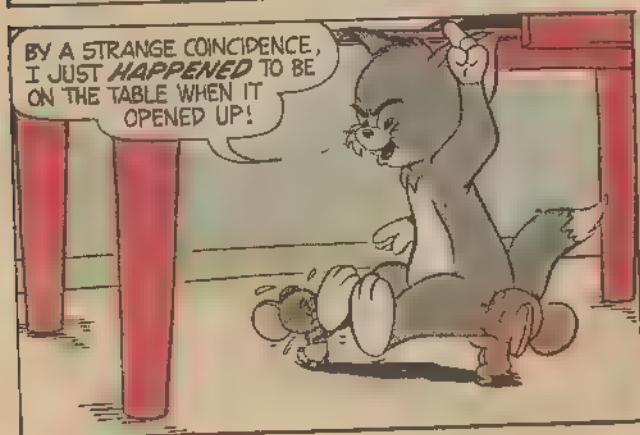

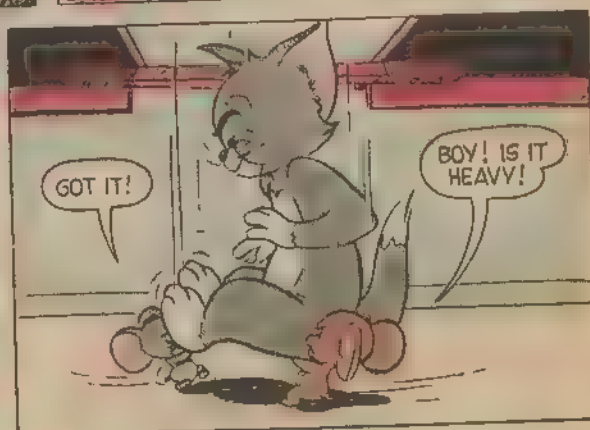

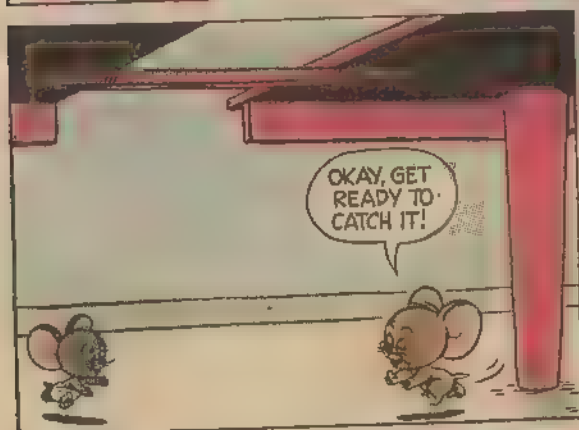

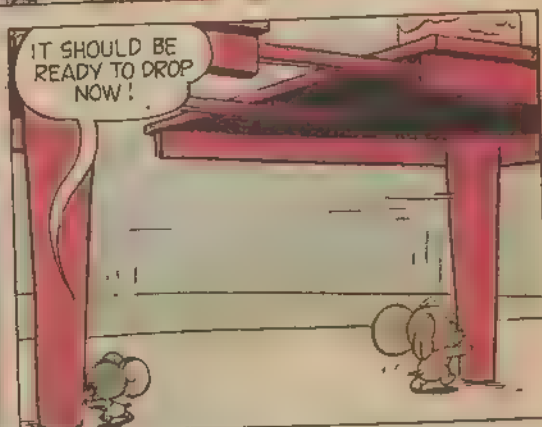

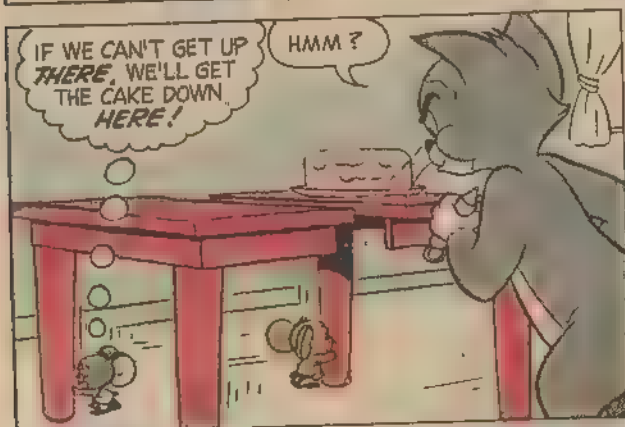

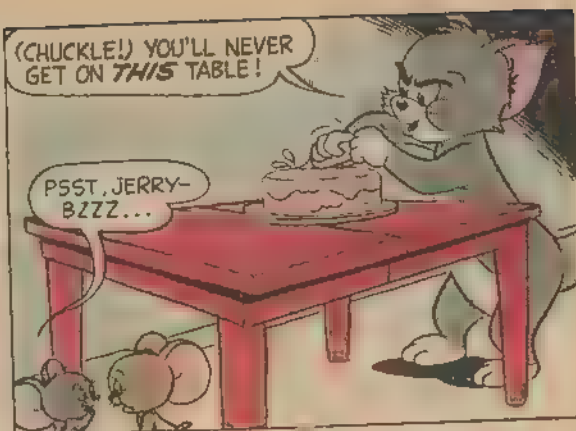

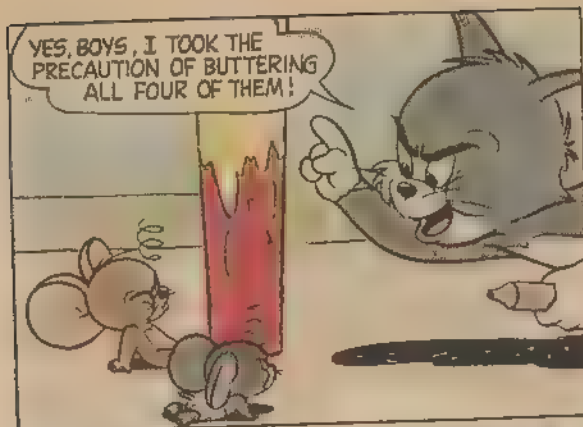

As Charlie fell headlong over a bush in his scared haste to escape, Wuff and Sammy dashed around him and raced back to the short cut and safety.

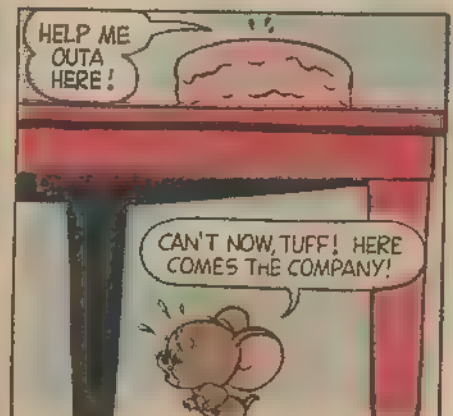

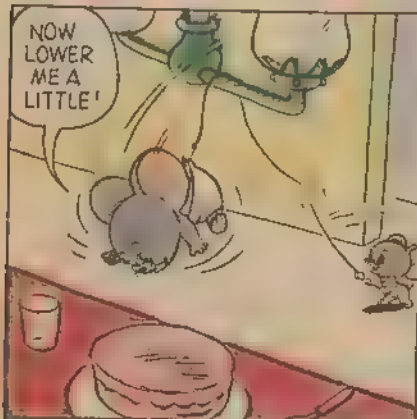

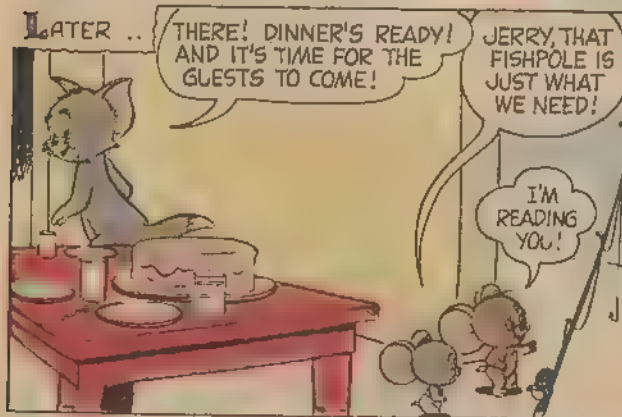

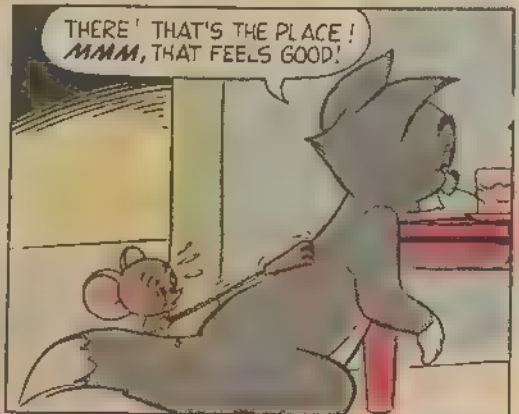

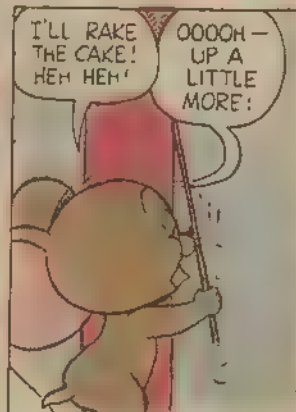

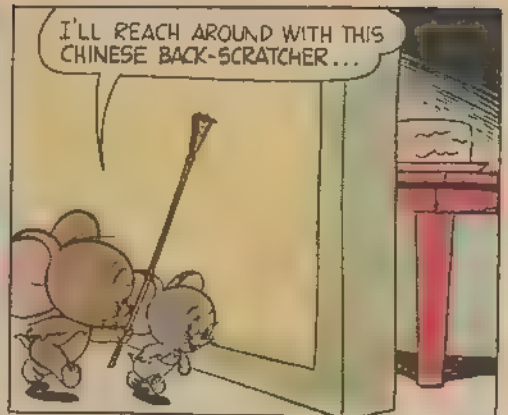

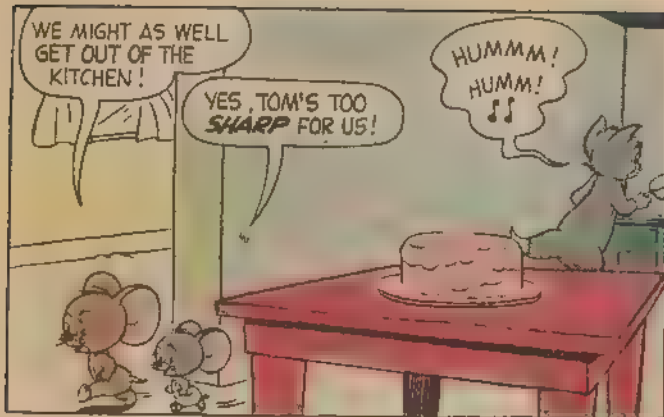

"That talking book should help Charlie a lot," Wuff panted, "because it will give him some food for thought."
